

7th Annual

2008 Business Continuity & Corporate Security Show & Conference

March 18-19, 2008 (Tues-Wed) Metropolitan Pavilion 125 West 18 St at 7th Ave, New York

2008 Business Continuity Show. Register for Free Show Now!

Crisis Management. How do businesses manage crisis?

Messaging. Notification. Data Storage. Back Up. Operations Recovery. Staff Relocation. Cyber Attacks. Avian Epidemics.

The 7th Annual New York Show provides a collaborative meeting place for businesses searching for answers to crisis management.

Plan to attend the 2008 Show that will assemble 800-1000 business continuity directors, corporate security executives and business managers from Wall Street and the East coast.

Wall Street is the largest and most important vertical market for business continuity planning.

Sponsors include the Contingency Planning Exchange with chapters in New York, Long Island and Washington DC. CPE will be joined by other major New York business and financial organizations that focus on disaster recovery, business continuity and corporate security.

Come to the Conference and hear Michael Lesk, Professor, Rutgers University and Chair, Department of Library and Information Science, talk about Estonia and the Cyberwar this past May.

The Conference is only $295 ($395 on site – save $100) and includes 2 days of sessions, a buffet luncheon, opening reception, handouts and more. This is the lowest cost of any major BCP conference.

The Show is free but you must register to attend.

Prof. Michael Lesk
