The need for speed.

See new Wall Street speakers talking about speed, low latency, cost-saving strategies.

Register today for the full conference and save $100.

Wall Street and the financial markets are looking for ways for traders to speed their orders to market.

This IT priority combines with lowering costs, making users more productive, streamlining business processes.

High Frequency Trading, High Performance Computing, and increased volume of transactions are creating pressure for IT departments to seek out technology and lower transaction costs.

2010 IT budgets are projected to increase by 6%. This is an incentive for major firms to see, examine and compare systems at our 2010 Annual High Performance Computing Linux Showcase.

The Show will feature High Performance Computing, High Frequency Trading, Linux and Open Source, Virtualization, Cloud Computing, Grid, Blade and Cluster computing and other cost saving technologies.

Our Show is an efficient one-day demonstration showcase and networking opportunity.

IBM, Oracle, Intel, Cisco, Blade, ScaleMP, among other leading companies will be showing their newest products on-the-show floor live.

Register in advance for the full conference program which includes general sessions, drill down sessions, an industry luncheon, coffee breaks, exclusive viewing times in the exhibits, and more. Save $100. $295 in advance. $395 on site.

Don't have time for the full Conference? Attend the free Show from 8 am-4 pm in the convenient Roosevelt Hotel at Grand Central Station. Plan to attend the free show, but you must register in advance at: <http://www.flaggmgmt.com/linux>
